

At right: A view in Rocky Mountain National Park, one of the great pleasure resorts of the tourist in the west.

One of the most unusual photographs ever taken of the late Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. It was snapped on Prince Edward Isle, where Dr. Bell engaged in many scientific experiments. The lad is a grandchild.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, Mrs. Bell, their children and grandchildren at the home of Gilbert Grosvenor, Wild Acres, Bethesda, Md. Dr. and Mrs. Bell are seated. Standing, back row, Mr. Grosvenor, Mrs. Grosvenor, Dr. David Fairchild and Mrs. Fairchild.

Girls will be girls, no matter how old they be, and there is always a "hankering" for a doll. The largest collection of dolls in the city of New York is owned by Miss Maxine Brown, and the photo shows her taking them out for a ride.

Flock of sheep in a city street. The photo was taken while the sheep were being driven to a boat at the foot of Gold street, Brooklyn.

Mario G. Menocal, former President of Cuba, who sailed several days ago for Europe. Photo taken aboard the S. S. Aquitania in New York harbor.

Mount Fusillade, in Glacier National Park, one of the remarkable views of the big national playground.